STUDIES

Spring 2018

Undergraduate Courses

CGS 2B – Intro to CGS: Social Formations

Jillian Hernandez, Department of Ethnic Studies

An introduction to the social relations of power that are shaped by and that shape gender and sexuality. It will build more on the basic concepts and skills introduced in CGS 2A.

CGS 100B – Conceptualizing Gender: Methods & Methodologies

Dayo Gore, Department of Ethnic Studies

Introduction to interdisciplinary research methodologies used in critical gender studies. Students will learn to identify and utilize humanities, social science, and natural science methods for studying gender and sexuality, and to evaluate how knowledge about gender and sexuality is produced.

CGS 106 – Gender & the Law

Salvador Zaráte, Critical Gender Studies Program

Explores the legal treatment of discrimination on the basis of gender, including equal protection doctrine and some statutory law such as Title VII. Topics include the meaning of gender equality in such areas as single-sex education, military service, sexual harassment, discrimination on the basis of pregnancy, and other current issues.

CGS 112 – Sexuality & Nation

Kirstie Dorr, Department of Ethnic Studies

(Cross-listed with ETHN 127.) This course explores the nexus of sex, race, ethnicity, gender, and nation and considers their influence on identity, sexuality, migration movement and borders, and other social, cultural, and political issues that these constructs affect.

CGS 114 – Gender, Race, Ethnicity, & Class

Kirstie Dorr, Department of Ethnic Studies

(Cross-listed with ETHN 183.) Gender is often neglected in studies of ethnic/racial politics. This course explores the relationship of race, ethnicity, class, and gender by examining the participation of working-class women of color in community politics and how they challenge mainstream political theory.

CGS 122 – Advanced Topics in Comparative Perspectives: War, Gender & Security

Karen Shelby, Critical Gender Studies Program

Focuses on the relationship between gender and culture from a multiplicity of perspectives. Possible topics could include gender and ethnicity, gender across class, and other topics to be examined in a cross-cultural framework. May be taken for credit two times when topics vary.

CGS 187 – Latinx Sexualities

Salvador Zaráte, Critical Gender Studies Program

(Cross-listed with ETHN 187.) The construction and articulation of Latinx sexualities will be explored in this course through interdisciplinary and comparative perspectives. We will discuss how immigration, class, and norms of ethnicity, race, and gender determine the construction, expression, and reframing of Latinx sexualities.
